The fishing adventures of the "Average Joe". Since I am just passing on these fishing reports, stories, or tales; there is no way I can validate them. I will say this though, "There is no way I would ever question the integrity of a fisherman or fishing lady. As far as I'm concerned, what ever you say . . . is gospel."

With the waters warming up, the fishin' is heatin' up also. The Gulf Stream was close in bringing with it those tasty Mahi Mahi; with my wife and I being humble recipients of some fresh fillets. Ah, yes, the perks. Some day (and I just keep sayin' some day), I'm gonna' get out there and catch some of those flashy blue-green streaks myself yea right some day.

Those days are comin' soon right after the "Silver King" (it's a beautiful thing miss ya Randy) make their annual spring migration to our waters close on their tail fins are our spring and summer "Chinese fire drill" we call fishin' for dolphin.

I also heard of some really big "Smoker" Kings hittin' the deck. One story teller was not so pleased with his "gaff man" who beat and stabbed his trophy 40lb King Mack right off his hook and into freedom.

Lauren Douglas shows off a nice red caugh on spin gear while fishing in the Flamingo area with Capt J.R. Gabriel.

Of course the "gaff man" told another side to the story. I'm not sure which of these 40 plus year friends to believe; as they trashed and ribbed each other as only good old friends can do. Hey, if ya can't make your friends look foolish who can ya make fun of?

CATCH OF THE WEEK ---

Sometime Ocean Isles Fishing Village resident, "Chiz" Burdett and friend made the best of a very snotty day headin' off shore and came home with a bounty of fish. To quote Chiz, "When the "wimps" were just 'a sittin' at the dock this "Ole West Virginia boy just claimed the promise of Genesis 1:26, and went forth catchin' Flag Yellowtails, large Mangroves, 20lb. Muttons, Groupers that looked to be close to 30 pounds and Sail Dogs on blue and white lures. In case you're not familiar with the Bible, Gen. 1:26 says God gave us dominion over the fish of the sea. Thank you Father!

Chiz is the sporting type, using lighter tackle than most. Whatever he used, he certainly knows what he's doin'; I saw the pictures as proof. Not that I would ever question anyone with his ability to defend, cross-examine, overrule, and object with the highest degree of authority. Court adjourned.

Don't forget the soldiers, they keep us" fishin' free", God bless the peacemakers. To support our troops go to Forgotten Soldiers Outreach: www.forgottensoldiers.org

I welcome disagreements, corrections, or comments; along with your favorite fishin' adventure. I'm always looking for fishin' reports, stories, or tales. E-mail them to me at: danielsreelandrod@comcast.net, phone (305) 304-4118, or come by my shop:

This past week I had the pleasure and the honor of going fishing with four American men who chose years ago to serve their country. Three were enlisted men, one was an officer, all are heroes. They were part of a group down here from Walter Reed Hospital in Washington D.C. These men all carried scars and horrific wounds that stop you in your tracks. They referred to the moment that they were wounded in terms like "there I was walking on patrol and I got blown up" or "there was a flash and I was down crawling to my buddy" almost like me saying "then the fish peeled off 200 yards of line". It just happened and they moved on. They spoke of the efforts that they're making to get back into shape to go back to Iraq, but in terms of when they get their running leg adjusted and their stump heals completely. I heard a Staff Sargent from North Carolina who handles bomb sniffing dogs explain to me with total clarity

Capt. Joe Petrucco Islamorada Offshore

What a beautiful week here in the Florida Keys. The weather was superb. This is why so many come and spend time here in the winter months to enjoy the mild temps and hot fishing action. The sailfish were on the slower end this week however; anyone willing to put in their time got their chances and many fish were caught and released. Capt. Mel Walker on the GOTCHA from Holiday Isle was successful at releasing sails more than a few times this week. Capt. Scott Stanzyk on the CATCH 22 from Bud & Mary's marina also caught many sails for his anglers throughout the week with six releases on Sunday. The best action seems to be up by Conch reef, only a short ride from anywhere in Islamorada. Ballyhoo are still the number one bait in 90-120 feet of water. We should have a little more wind this coming week so the goggle eyes and blue runners from a kite will get the job done. The wahoo and need, how he will be back on patrol in combat as soon as he gets his wind back and his sprint times down. All this as he was adjusting the spring action on his artificial leg! There was no false bravado here, just everyday American men who have made sacrifices of their time, their bodies and their futures, so the rest of the world (not just America) may be a better place.

They were far removed from the hours of therapy that make up their days and were given a dose of the medicine that can only be found out on the water while fishing. The effect of the day's fishing was so effective, yet so simple, you could see the disconnect from the hospital. When you are concentrating on a running, leaping sailfish on a blue - blue sea, you can't and won't look too much past the task at hand. That is the beauty and power of fishing. We were fishing on the charter boat "Relentless" out of Bud 'n Mary's Marina. Capt. Paul Ross and mate Jimmy Hendricks put on a show! It's no wonder these guys have dominated the sailfish game as of late, they never stop looking for signs of bait, birds and sailfish. We ran up and down the reef-line all day, constantly changing baits and setups as conditions changed throughout the day. We caught 3 sails the first day and they caught 6 sails on the second day winning the tourney that was held for them and their buddies.

The level of commitment these men showed to recover and move on is amazing and humbling. I have an artificial knee and another is in my future, but I will never complain about either joint again. If you come across a soldier or veteran, take the time to shake their hand and tell them "Thank You" (personal "world views" are not necessary).

Thank you to all of the boat crews and to Mangrove Mike's for taking care of these soldiers from Walter Reed. Also, thanks to the Elk's Club for their efforts, the lunches from The Island Grill, and so many other people who helped. Thanks to Elizabeth (of this paper), for all of her efforts – she somehow fit into her schedule to work as the committee boat/tournament director, plus made sure these soldiers had fun on the water.

were moving through the reef this week as several nice fish from 35-55 pounds were taken. They will usually show up in a pack of three to five fish so be ready for multiples if possible. Live baiting speedos on the reef edge and on wrecks out to 160 feet will produce huge results. An added benefit is that the sails and smoker kings love them too. The bad news is that they can be challenging to procure. While we are on the subject of PROCURE, I have found a great new product that helps me to catch fish. The name of the company is PROCURE and they sell products to add scent to your offerings. The super squid gel is my favorite one. Add a drop to your squid rig to entice more and larger snappers and groupers to bite your deep rigs. Smear some on your high speed jig for that extra touch on days when the bite is slower. I have even got fish to bite a bare hook with it! You can find it on-line at www. procure.com. Try it out, you will not be disappointed. They also make a dye to make your ballyhoo bright green, pink, and or blue. The bright green ballyhoo are really brilliant in the sunlight. The mahi mahi should be able to find them easier this spring when we shift our sights to the offshore grounds.

The kings have been steady on the wrecks up and down the coast from Pickles to Tennessee reef. All that is required is some live ballyhoo or cigar minnows. Drop one down on a dropper loop rig with #5 or #6 wire and a ha ha stinger for great results. Of course the downrigger works very well as the depth fished will be more precise. Capt. J.R. Rudzin on the CAPT. JR from Holiday Isle is a downrigger master. He has been deploying a downrigger in his fishing system for over 20 years. He catches wahoo, tuna, dolphin, snapper, king fish, and grouper on his deep baits routinely. If you like to troll with live or dead baits, a downrigger will make a great addition to your arsenal. Enjoy another fabulous week of fishing in world famous Islamorada. See you next week!

If you have been reading my reports for a while you will probably remember that I always like the darkening side of the moon phase. A waning moon always seems to produce better fishing on the reef. Thus far this has proven true yet again. This past week brought big king mackerels, red groupers, mangrove snappers, mutton snappers and more yellowtails than we have caught in a couple of months.

When it came to the yellowtails and mangroves the common rule was the shallower you fished the better you did. Our hottest 'tail bite was on a patch reef that was 18ft deep. We fished it repeatedly over the course of the week and it just kept on producing. The only time we fished it without success was on Thurs. when the water had begun to clear up. Prior to that, the water was very dirty everywhere and it made the snappers a lot more susceptible to our antics.

Key Largo Offshore

Do you know the thing I like best about Florida? If you get frustrated with the weather you don't have to wait very long before it changes. So within a few days after a wicked cold snap, the sun can pop out, wind lighten up and things can heat up quickly. Lately we have enjoyed some of the best weather in the past several months regarding perfect conditions and great fishing. Although this is still sail fish season and they are still here and biting well, there are so many other things happening too! For instance reef fishing has been great. Mutton snapper have lead the way here with grouper running a close second and yellow tail snapper are just in a league of their own and biting very good. Mutton snapper are a keys favorite and the numbers of fish right now may be as good as we have seen in several years. Although these tasty fish haven't been giant by any means they are 4 to 6 pound fish. That is the size of a very large yellow tail

The one fish that I was hoping to be able to come up with this week but couldn't was ballyhoo. The charter boats have been catching them fairly consistently early in the morning over grassy bottoms but they just haven't been anywhere near where we typically fish. I love using live ballyhoo on the bottom this time of year in the patches for muttons and groupers.

Another thing the 'hoos are helpful with are the king macks. Since we didn't have any live baits we stuck to using dead ballyhoo flat lined back in the chum slick then jigged back to the boat. On Tuesday afternoon we fished the edge of the reef for kings and groupers. The groupers sure didn't bite for us that day but the kings were jumping on basically every bait we put in the water. The big star of the day was a 45-pound king that ate a bait right before we were to head home. We ended up pulling the anchor in order to chase the trophy which was hooked on 12-pound test. After about 35 minutes we finally gaffed the fish and pulled it into the boat. Not only did that monster end up in the icebox but also on the angler's wall. The measurements were sent off to Grey's Taxidermy and the fish will be living permanently up in Illinois.

Finally, the night fishing really picked up for Capt. Ron on the 7:30 trip. Thursday night he ended up boating 10 mutton snappers, a bunch of mangroves, vermilions, yellowtails, almaco jacks and margates. He said it was constant action from the drop of the anchor until it was time to head home. And getting home didn't happen quite as planned as they hooked a large shark or stingray that drug the boat almost a mile in an exhausting hour of fighting before finally breaking off. Talk about a big disappointment!

This hot action will continue for a couple more weeks, so get out there and take advantage of the opportunity. Plus, keep your eyes out for cobias while you are anchored up or running over the sand inside of the reef.

Thanks for reading, \checkmark and we are catching some up to 12 or 13 pounds too. On the grouper scene we are finding some mixed size blacks and reds in these same depths from 120 to 135 feet around good live bottom. We have had no problem letting these under size fish go by using a venting tool and grouper are tough fish that respond well to acupuncture. Along with this great rod bending fishing we are also enjoying a great bite of kings too. You can always tell when the bite is good off of Key Largo because even the Islamorada charter boats will make the run up here to get in on this steady action when things are slow to the south. I attribute this to bait concentrations off the edge of the reef and this changes quite often. These crazy mackerel are eating like wild dogs and you can catch them on just about anything from spoons to plugs and a wide variety of live offerings as well as jigs and even strips fished on light wire. The kings are 4 to 5 pounds on up to thirty plus pounds. Further offshore the humps have been active with old Mr. Rubber lips or reef donkey's better known as amber jacks. These bruiser fish are suckers for live blue runners or large cigar minnows and will gladly break your back and fight until they get to the boat. Along with the aj's are almaco jacks and plenty of big sharks too. Right off the bottom on these spots are vermillion snapper and yellow eye snapper and these fish can be taken on chicken rigs with smaller chunks. We have recently had some Wahoo sightings too. Wahoo have slid into the upper keys and from the edge of the reef in 130 feet on out to 250 can be targeted with rigged baits or trolling plugs, just remember to kick up your speed a bit and you should get a few knock downs. Mahi have also popped up once more and the magic depth has been from 350 feet to 500. Work weed edges and current rips for best success. Good luck!

Oh happy day it is for me to be writing for the Weekly Fisherman about all things feminine that have to do with the water - hence the name of this column:

- She's at Sea the subject. This will be a column about what women are doing on the water, what they should be doing, what they could be doing, and what they want to be doing. (She's at Sea also happens to be the name of a boat handling course for women that I created and teach. Admittedly, I am trying to create a little name recognition, but with such an apt description of the subject matter of this column, I couldn't resist.) I often wonder why the world of fishing and boating is still a predominantly male dominated pursuit but frankly, that kind of wonderment is a real waste of time. Instead, I will just make the effort to write about the smart and capable women in our community who are fishing and boating. In the meantime, I may do a little to tip the scales of participation.
- Pearls, Pinfish, and Patience the meat of the column. Surely you have read Men are from Mars, Women are from Venus -- hmmm can I presume that about this readership? Suffice it to say that this article will simply address boating and fishing issues from a female perspective.

Articles will range from interviews with female tournament winners and losers to digressions about what to eat or wear on board. Oh - I have always longed to enter a recipe contest and I can see one in the future of this column.

I am open for topic suggestions. One acquaintance suggested that I interview backcountry captains about what they really do when the lady angler on board has to use the bathroom. Another suggested a column on how to throw a cast net and yet another suggestion was about women who do other cool stuff on the water like kitesurf and spearfish. Clearly the options are endless.

Please forward any great photos of women or kids participating in spectacular nautical adventures - or mild adventures. I really shouldn't relegate photo request to only the spectacular.

I look forward to highlighting the many women of this coastal community who love their watery backyard as much as I do.

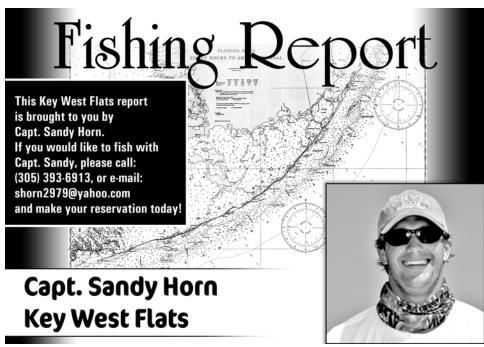

Please e-mail with thoughts, suggestions, and photos to: info@bayandreef.com.

Stew from Pennsylvania caught this 40lb black with a little help from Capt. Dan on the Second Nature. The fish was caught on a live 14 in yellow tail in 60 ft of water. Stew and his father also caught 2 big mutton, 12 total tails and a few cero mackerel!

Hope everyone is having a great week down here in the lower keys and what a week it has been. The fishing has been marginal for myself with some really nice weather on occasion when you would think the fishing would be hot. I was saying to friends that I took a left when I really should have taken a right and that will happen as a fisherman every once in a while. Not to say I have had horrible fishing, but I felt that I should have been seeing more fish on some of the days I fished. I am probably being a little too honest here but hopefully as a reader you will appreciate it. Don't get used to it though, because towards the end of the week I got back into a better rhythm and will explain the fishing I was doing. The real story this week was the fog. I've lived in south Florida my whole life and have never seen fog like this in the Florida Keys. As you get to the mainland of Florida you will get heavy fog like we've been having but usually it will break up over the water as the sun starts to rise and that has not been the case this week. The fog in itself was making the fishing difficult because you can't see over a distance which makes sight fishing nearly impossible. The fog also caused the water and air to be much cooler and the tarpon spots I was fishing just weren't working until the fog had lifted. It was definitely a beautiful sight in the morning and I appreciated that aspect of it but I am ready for it to go away.

The good thing was that when the fog would lift in the afternoon the fishing would get fantastic. We also had some good permit fishing mid week right before we were engulfed by the fog. I am a big fan of fishing in February because it's when everything starts to warm up and we start seeing the first signs of spring. It is also some of the easiest fishing you will have because whether you are fishing for tarpon or permit, they haven't been fished for too heavily and seem easier to entice a bite. This doesn't hold as true to permit as it does tarpon but I have noticed a difference over the years. The tarpon are starting to move up to the flats and should continue through this week. We have a weak frontal boundary approaching the keys but it is not supposed to affect the weather that much and winds are going to be blowing southeast. That means warm weather, which in turn means warm flats with hungry fish. I can't begin to tell you how excited I am to be talking about tarpon again on the flats. Any serious fisherman who has not fished for the silver king is really missing out on an experience of a lifetime. I am assuming the fog will lift by this week and the weather forecast looks great so if you get a chance to fish this week head out and see what I am talking about.

Hope everyone has tight lines and fish boat side until next week.

What a great week we just had here in the Lower Keys. The weather had been less than favorable for a few weeks and it finally broke. This week brought great boating and fishing. If you did not get out on the water then you missed out.

Flats fishing took off during the warm weather. Big tarpon have started to move into the area. Look for the big tarpon to be working Oceanside flats and willing to eat a well presented fly. Out back produced shots at good numbers of big permit. Live crabs will get the job done but for the ultimate challenge break out the fly rod. Bonefish rounded out your possibility for a grand slam. The last few weeks made for tough flats fishing but this week more than made up for it. We have a little bit of a front moving back in but I doubt that it will do much to harm the fishing.

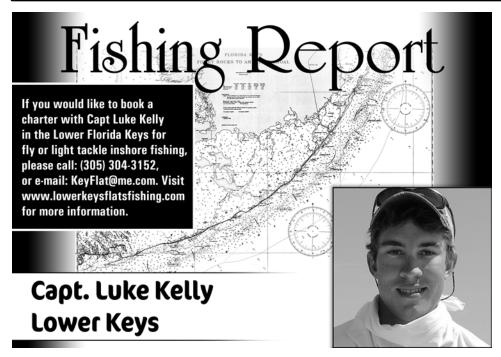

wary than they have been. A mixed bag catch was the name of the game. The grouper bite was good with live pinfish, grunts and yellowtails all getting good attention. Kingfish have not been red hot this year but there were a few around this past week. We had a few big kings nail live blue runners while on the reef. Snapper rounded out the reef bite and put some tasty fish in the box. Yellowtails were quick to pop up in the chum slick. If you were lucky then you might have come across a mutton or two, there were a few around.

Offshore was very good over the past week. There were a lot of dolphin roaming the reef line early in the week. It was still a little rough but the fishing definitely made it worth getting out. As the week progressed the fish scattered a little bit. Sailfish were few and far between. Typically this time of year brings good sail fishing but this year has been a little hit or miss. We have had a few days of good sail fishing and then a slow week. Capt. Charley of the Squid Roe had a great day on Sunday with a bunch of dolphin up to 28lbs while headed out to do some sword fishing. He pulled most of his fish out from under debris in 750 but reported getting scattered bites all the way out. The Gulf Stream was running in the 300 ft depths making for a good place to start. I rarely get out much further than the mid 300 ft depths during the winter time, unless sword fishing. If you do get out in deeper water then look for floaters to make your day.

I made one trip to the gulf I hopes of a banner day of cobia fishing unfortunately this was not the case. We did find good action with fun fish but no cobia. There were plenty of grouper, snapper, jacks, mackerel, goliaths and sharks to keep us busy. I had reports of another boat that made a long run out to the towers in hopes of cobia. They gave me similar reports of fun fish with an absence of cobia.

Good luck and good fishing.

Reef fishing was good this week with dirty water making the fish less

What a week this has been. Just as the weather turned for the better side of things, we get hit with some Friday the 13th fog that has now lasted three mornings straight. As of the 11th, the wind laid down, both water and air temps climbed, and the flats came to life. Permit where the highlight of my week as they became very active given the mild conditions they received following our past cold front.

I was able to get on the water for just about every day this week and have watched the conditions go from bad to good and then to very bad. The very bad I am referring to would be the dense fog that covered the Lower Keys backcountry in a way I myself have never witnessed. Each year brings a little fog down here, but this fog was anything but little.

This past Thursday gave way to the best conditions by far, a long awaited window in which I had the pleasure of spending the day with a well-minded fly fisherman from Colorado. Jeff and I were very fortunate to embark on a primo day for his first permit-specific charter. We fished west of Key West and were provided an early incoming tide, which lead to a great falling tide by noon. I found the best fishing to be found during the entire fall where dozens of permit in the 10 - 20 pound range were found feeding atop a handful of flats we spent our time on. We found plenty of permit, and were offered at least six solid opportunities to stick one on fly, though failed to put one beside the boat after unfortunately pulling the hook on what I felt was a well-deserved fish. Jeff knew that what he was trying to do was no easy task and I certainly respected his efforts. See you in March Jeff, those pre-spawn permit will be waiting.

Friday the 13th brought the fog that lasted for three mornings in a row. The first morning I left the dock with high hopes that the rising sun and breeze would burn off the then light blanket of fog that had just came on us. It didn't, as of 15 minutes after arriving at our destination, again in search of permit on fly, I was left poling through a dream-like flat, unable to see 70 yards in either direction. I never expected to be handed such hazardous conditions, and felt the best thing to do at the time was stay shallow, fish and wait for it to move on. Even though we were literally fishing inside of a cloud, we managed to pole up on a few groups of traveling permit, though given the less than poor conditions, Henry of New England was never given a fair chance. Four hours into the trip I realized it was a major fog event and shot back to Sugarloaf, once I was in safe enough water to use my chart plotter. I will never look at a passing cloud on a sunny day of flats fishing in the same way.

The second day of fog I decided to return to the flats off of Key West a bit later in the day and was able to fish between the vast banks of fog over relatively calm and absolutely crystal clear water. Kevin of Tennessee had no problem in landing two very nice permit that day using live crabs as bait (see photo below left). The grey skies and near perfect conditions shadowed us from the permit, making for great fishing, and I all of a sudden didn't mind the fog anymore. That feeling lasted until about the next morning when I awoke to see the third morning of the heaviest fog yet. I cancelled my morning trip and was unable to fish the beautiful conditions that followed by noon.

If you wish to fish on your own for permit on fly in the Lower Keys during these upcoming months, you will first find where they hang out, and then provide yourself with the more natural looking crab and/or shrimp patterns from the hundreds available. Your colors should not exceed brown, olive, tan, white, grey, black, or blue. And rather than worrying about the exact fly you are using, you should first worry about how you plan on presenting the fly to the permit. Remember to keep it basic, treat that permit like a jack so to keep your cool. Place your fly five feet in front and inline of its path, give it one long strip, and then let it sink in front of it. Watch for a positive reaction from the fish on the fly, strip set, and raise your rod tip only after you feel the line pulling back.

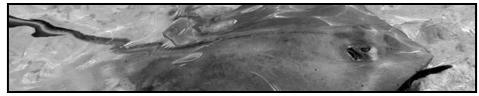

Drop a live crab or shrimp in the flats and watch what it does, nine times out of ten it will go straight for the bottom where it feels safest. Never will a crab or shrimp want to feel safer until it is in front of a hungry permit. If your fly resembles one of our many crabs or shrimp, and you make it act like one, chances are you will fool nature and catch yourself one of the greatest challenges in saltwater fly fishing. You can find everything you need in the heart of permit country at Sugarloaf Marina, best prices on bait, fuel, and tackle. They can even hook you up with some of the best guides in the area, who can put you on those permit. Thanks for reading.

We went fishing for sails on the 8th and there were none to be had. Caught a few dolphin around eight pounds in 110 feet of water. We slow trolled from the 200-foot barge out in front of the light all the way to Marker 20. We got nothing but four dolphin. We picked up and moved to the west end of long key bridge and found more current but no fish. I decided to go dropping. We caught eight Amberjacks that were all 24 inches long. No keepers but loads of fun for my clients Brian and Dawn. There was a four to five foot dark brown shark that swam around the boat, which we tried to hook up. I cut up a slab of Jack Cravalle and slung it over the side. He kept circling it until it was out of sight. Finally, we got a bite and we were off to the races. The fish stripped off 200 yards of line on a two minute run. We were able to get him close to the boat and then another 200 yard run. We got half of that in and another 200 yard run. Thank god for the Fin Nor Offshore Spinning Reels. Lots of line, but 2/3 of the line was out. Twenty minutes later the fish shined just under the boat, about 60 feet down. It didn't look like a shark. Another run, which was short lived and finally we got him boat side, guess what: a 45 pound kingfish. Wow, high fives all around like we just won the Key West SKA tournament. The fish was five feet long and the meat was firm like a jack, I've never seen a king that big with green meat and firm too. It's going to be great in the smoker. After that we ran home. Listening to the radio, I didn't hear that much was caught other than some dolphin up the road and some snappers on the reef. Maybe tomorrow will be better. I got to do it all over again. Sailfish, oh where did you go?

On the 9th we didn't mess around. We shot up to Tennessee Light and right off the bat we hooked a sailfish in 165 feet of water, which thought he was a superstar. He jumped around for ten minutes strait, until he tail-whipped the leader. Then we foul hooked a blackfin tuna around 20 pounds in 200 feet of water. After all the chaos settled down I managed to get two baits back out while trying to untwist the spun lines. Another sailfish hooked up in 175 feet of water, and the chaos started all over again. We hooked another sailfish, one other line out and two other rods out with 150 yards of line in the water trying to get un-spun. We got the fish in for a photo within 8 minutes. We got the lines out again and got harassed by sharks for two hours strait. We gave up on the sail fishing and caught about ten AJ's deep dropping in 250 feet of water. We went home and had sushi, sashimi, and tuna salad (Japanese style), which was fixed by my favorite sushi chef. Fresh tuna, yum-m-m.

We went to Washerwomen and caught all the bait we needed really fast. I like to get 25 baits hair hooked first, and then I throw the net and load up. I do this because they last longer in the well than the ones you net. We went straight out to 150 feet and worked slowly down sea. Good thing we did, because we hooked up with the first sail around 10:00 and got the release after about ten minutes. The fish first came up on the live bait teaser, which is only eight feet past our motors. We hooked this fish in 140 feet of water. I pulled the teaser away from him and he fell back on the first bait on the right flat. I generally keep that bait five to eight feet behind the teaser. This fish was a nice sixty-pound fish. Then we trolled for about a half hour more when all the baits including the teaser started to jump frantically out of the water. There were five fish back

Good bye cold weather, bring on the sunshine. What a relief to get a break from such cold and how happy those fish will be. They say work is for people who don't know how to fish. So why work when I can go fishing. But really, the fishing got excellent in a hurry. Down here it does not take long for good days to come again and with that some nice catches on long key. Whether you chose the front side, back side out in-between, catches soared. So lets gets started and tell you what's been happening.

Trout, Redfish and some big Black Drum were being caught in the channels and passes from middle cape to flamingo. Working buck tails tipped with shrimp and worked slowly on incoming tides seemed best. I use light spinning rods with either 8 or 10 lb. test. Add a short piece of 20 or 30 lb. mono. There are many times just slow reeling in with no rod

Q: Why does this 30 lb. king have no gaff marks?
A: Cause he free jumped in the boat. Seriously.

Dave Manz fishing on his boat alone off Marathon - pg. 17.

These snappers were caught in 200 ft of water in the Big Coppitt secret spot! Fisherman are Tim Wier and Ralph DePalma.

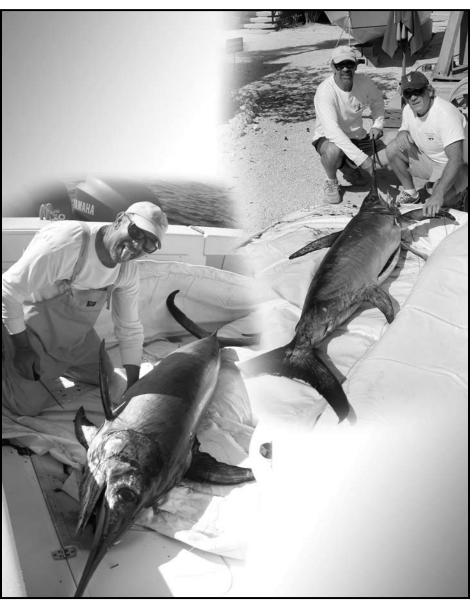

action can do better as until the water hit's the best temps, they can be slow to take. Some really big trout are taken this way.

Out in the gulf, we got into 2 amazing days of fog that made a GPS your best friend. For all that time I never saw another boat and I'm sure there were others that could say the same. My anglers were grateful to see the boat finally stopping to anchor and chum. Me too. The catch was a lot of nice Mangrove Snapper with a bunch of mackerel to keep everyone busy. And somehow the area was covered with some big Black Tip Sharks that seemed to swallow any mackerel that got in their way. No swimming out here fellows.

Way out in the gulf some Marathon boats came across a school of big Jacks reaching 25 lbs. That's a great fight for anyone lucky enough to find them. A couple more days and some big Permit should be marauding around with Cobia close by.

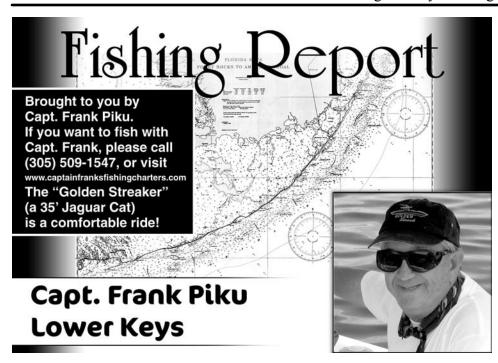

With the slick calm surface and late afternoon warming, Tripletail were for the taking. You get only 2 per person but once eaten become a culinary delight your tummy will thank you for. Snook, Gag Grouper and tripletail are 1,2,3 as far as eating go. Just my choice. I have been throwing mostly a nice plump shrimp but lately I have had great success offering them small bright red flies. Not sure why they love to eat that color but both angler and fish see it well. Might be the next go to pattern. I'll keep you posted.

Well that's it for now but I will leave with this ---President Herbert Hoover, without a doubt our best leader to fish all the Florida Keys especially here on Long Key, While responding to each arena of his life said that ALL MEN ARE EQUAL BEFORE FISH. So let's get out on the water and have a great day (unless you have other plans).

Rick Anderson and Capt Greg had a great day on the Miss Molly fishing out of Sister Creek Marathon. They were deep dropping for sword fish and got lucky to bring home an estimated 200 pounder.

The battle took 2 hours on a perfect day.

After 2 weeks of heavy winds it finally calmed down to no wind. Dennis From Marathon, Florida, called me to take him and his wife Karen for a Grouper fishing trip.

This was to be there first Grouper fishing excursion.

Dennis has been reading my articles for quite sometime and was really interested in seeing if the Fly rod method I've been writing and bragging about was really true or just a fairy tale. He called me and we set a date for this last week. I cancelled to dates because the winds were still blowing and I wanted to take them to my favorite GROUPER HEAVEN locations. Finally Wednesday showed a weather report that was great. Calm winds and no seas let me go far West beyond the Marquesa islands. We stopped at a few locations to see if there were any Cobia in the area. With no luck we continued West. After about an hour run with Isn't it great when Florida feels like Florida? Extreme wintry conditions gave way this week to calm seas, sunny skies, and warm air. It was just what the doctor ordered. Fish that had been for the most part inactive suddenly awoke, and decided it was time to eat. Usually the first few warm days after a stretch of cold weather prove to be active fishing days, as was the case this week.

For starters, bay waters warmed back into the apparent comfort zone of mangrove snappers by Wednesday. Numerous reports from fisherman in the bay, on the banks, and around the bridges confirmed that the mangrove snappers were biting good, as were just about everything else you would usually encounter in these areas. On a half day trip Wednesday morning aboard the Best Bet we found a great snapper bite on shallow bay structures, with fish up to 4 pounds! So long as the water my Cat doing 40mph. We arrived at my first location. Karen started off with landing 2 keeper Groupers on Stand up rods. This would beat her up if we continued on these rods. I broke out the Fly rod, and when she hooked up to a nice Grouper she could battle this one with out the strain of the stand up rod. I had to give a fly rod to Dennis and he immediately hooked up too. After about 10 or more landing and releases we moved on to another location. This is a 40 hump surrounded by 70' deep water. Here the bigger fish seem to concentrate. WE hooked into more and larger fish. With the Fly rods they were having the time of there life. In the mean time my friend Ken Domanski celebrating his birthday today was on to the Yellowtail Snappers and was using new chartreuse flies I tied for them. This was proving to be HOT, and the cooler was filling up with nice Flag Yellow Tails. Since we had our limit filled we fished our way trolling for Kings but they just weren't in our area so we buggied on home. Dennis is interested in a Swordfish trip after returning to Florida the first week of March. This will not be a fly rod method, but an evening of Sword fishing out 20 miles south of Key West. I guess it pays to write about our adventures in fishing!!!! This is always rewarding to have new anglers get a real great fishing trip, not just reading about it. Their next adventure will be for the big Swordfish that are south of Key West. So stay tuned and read my articles. Or visit my web site for more information.

temp doesn't suddenly plummet, I would expect a good week of fishing in the Bay and around the bridges. Mangrove snapper, yellow jacks, Spanish mackerel, yellowtail snapper, lane snapper, hogfish and more can be taken on live shrimp on a jig head or with a small weight and 1/0 or 2/0 hook. If you find yourself with little or no current, wait it out. Once the tide starts running, things usually pick up.

The reef activity has picked up as well. Mangrove and yellowtail snapper are biting well on reefs in 20 to 40 feet of water. Finding current is the key. We have had inconsistent currents on the reef making the fishing just that. One day the current was moving at a steady pace to the east, and we had an excellent morning catching mangrove and yellowtail snapper, red and gag grouper, and plenty of mackerel. A day later, however, the current switching and barely moving, the fishing was not as good. There were plenty of cero mackerel and kingfish up to 30 pounds patrolling the shallow reefs though, so have your wire ready. A live pilchard, small blue runner or ballyhoo will always do the trick, and when they're reel thick, try throwing a popper plug or spoon to have some fun. It can be difficult to get a bait to the bottom when the macks are in the chum... so catch them till your arms get tired, or till they seem to leave, then go for the snappers again! The lack of current off the reef edge has made fishing deep wrecks this week a bit lack luster. The fish jut don't seem to e very active out there when there is no current. The better choice for most of the week was in hunting sailfish and dolphin.

There seems to be a good number of sailfish still chasing live ballyhoo on the reef. Showering bait and frigate birds are the tell tail signs. If you're not seeing them in shallow, try off the reef edge with some live baits or trolling rigged ballyhoo. Some boats this week in Marathon reported seeing 10 or more sails in a morning, and catching up to six.

HOT...HOT...HOT — Bahamas Fishing

Bahamas fishing was nothing sort of insane this week. After the strongest cold front of the year with temps in the upper 40's at night, fishing got awesome. We saw water temps drop to 72 degrees and this fish actively responded. This week we fished mainly off of Guana Cay as we had to go no place else. We were fairly busy this week and fished quite a bit never leaving a 2 mile area all week off of Guana.

We fished a half day trip on Wednesday that was simply insane. Setting lines out we quickly went 3-5 on wahoo as they ate everything in the spread. Shortly after we got into the dolphin and it remained a furious bite, catching and releasing well over 20 dolphin. This is extremely early for the dolphin to be here, but Hey, I'll take it!

Out the next day again, the bite got even better. On Thursday's half day trip we consistently picked away at the dolphin and had one of the best 'hoo bits in quite some time. However, on this day we managed to come unglued on a fair amount of fish as they were doing the famous wahoo head shake as well as a couple short bits. We managed to go 6-11 on the 'hoos, as well as a half dozen dolphin. We have noticed the wahoo are getting a bit bigger as of late as we boated some to 60 lbs this week. For some reason this week our bait of choice this week was ballyhoo with 9 wire. For some reason they weren't responding to the plugs this week. Simply putting a bait down or on your riggers got em going. I believe the amount of bait in the area is why. We also tried something new this week putting some Spanish macks behind our billy baits on the deep rods. It seemed to work great as we caught 2 fish on the macks.

On a sour note, the bite seemed to tail off a little bit on Saturday with extremely flat seas. I believe we need another front to get things red hot again. We are expecting one tomorrow, hopefully to drop the sea temps back down again.

All in all this is one of the best weeks I have ever had here. We continued to have double digit wahoo bites on some days as well as dolphin. We continue to see some yellowfin filter in the area as we are catching a couple on a daily basis now. Some have been in the 50 lb range although we personally haven't caught them.

Now's the time to fish the Bahamas as we continue to see some of the best fishing in recent years!

there, two on the teaser and one on each of the flats, and one on the left rigger. This all happened in 120 feet of water; One on, two on, three on, my first triple of the year, which turned into a double after three minutes. One fish went northeast and the other one went west. I had one fish on a Fin Nor Offshore 6500 spinner, which had 400 yards of twenty, and one on a BG60. We had to go after the one on the BG60 because it holds less line. We were getting close to that fish when I got mugged by two private boats. One of them ran over the fish, which was stretched out. Then the other boat ran right on top of the line and both boats were pitching freebees. I got on the radio to tell them the situation but they just kept doing what they do best, mug the guy who is trying to make a living. I called repetitively over the radio that I have a fish stretched out 200 yards and one of the boats finally moved once we got the other fish and I charged him. I was in ramming mode. I was able to do this because my angler was reeling like there was no tomorrow. I charged this one boat trying to make him move off of my fish or line. I couldn't tell where it was. Finally, I scared him off and we got the release of the other one. So we went three for four. Never saw another fish after that.

Happy hunting and be courteous to your fellow fisherman/boaters.

Believe It or Not: The Biggest King I Never Caught . . .

I never would have believed it, had I not been an eyewitness. I was fishing alone - so who would believe me? But I swear to it. I was on working birds appx. 1/2 mile out on the ocean side of the seven mile bridge, to the east of Pidgeon Key. I was trolling a big spoon. Got a big hit. Lost it, wheeled around, chased down the birds, got a maller hit, and began to work the fish to the boat. Turned out to be a spanish mack. As I had the mackeral about fifteen feet dead off the stern, this king skyrocketed straight up like a ballistic missle from directly under the mackeral, intending to hit the mack, but missed; came up right over the boat, froze in mid-air (an indelible sight if there ever was one) came down, bounced once off the engines, and landed at my feet. I was dumbfounded. It was so surreal I couldn't comprehend it at first. But swear to god it happened just like that; proof is, that the fish has no gaff marks, and of course I could never have got that fish in the boat alone without gaffing it, maybe not even by gaffing it.

So, that's the story of the biggest king I never caught . . . Photo on pg. 12...

The warm weather has also seemed to fire up some wintertime dolphin for us. Over the past few days there have been packs of birds working small bunches of schoolie dolphin between 150 and 300 feet on weed lines and color changes. Troll your favorite small skirts or lures in the zone and you should run across them. There have also been a few bigger fish sighted, so have your 20 pound pitch rod with a live bait at the ready in case the slammer decides to swim up to your transom.

I have limited reports from offshore this week, but the one boat I know of that went to the humps for blackfin tuna did well, catching good size fish and in good numbers. I'm still a little hesitant to make the long run offshore, given that last time I went there the place was devoid of life! But everyday is different, and that's what makes it fun.

With all this good news and all these options I hope you all are as excited about fishing this week as I am. Good luck!
